“Despite the ongoing change at the federal level, the market has remained strong and the industry continues to adapt to the needs of the customers and the US policy market.”

The first video, The Singing of Things, features Anderson County resident, Mark Boyce.

Boody explains how courses at Roane State Community College’s Advanced Manufacturing Technology (AMTEC) and the state’s commitment to workforce development have helped the company transition to a new career path at the Carbon Fiber Technology Facility at Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

The video highlights his journey from desperation, to a path of growth and opportunity. He has built a shared understanding and direction about where our region’s future lies. It is up to us to ensure the competitiveness stands now, what its assets are, and how East Tennessee can position itself to be competitive long-term at a global level.
